

JMID's Janine Blume Passes NCIDQ to Become Licensed Interior Designer

JMID is proud to announce our newly licensed interior designer, Janine Blume! We're so proud of her hard work and determination in passing the NCIDQ exams. Janine is now the fourth licensed interior designer at JMID!

About the NCIDQ Exams:

To earn certification, qualified interior designers can apply to take the NCIDQ Examination. After CIDQ approves their eligibility, candidates register for each of the three sections of the exam and must pass each section within a specified timeframe. The exam is continually updated to ensure it aligns with the most current professional knowledge necessary to design spaces that are innovative, functional, and safe.

The three separate sections of the NCIDQ Exam are the Fundamentals Exam (IDFX), the Professional Exam (IDPX), and the Practicum Exam (PRAC). All three sections focus entirely on public health, safety, and welfare. Read more here: <https://www.cidq.org/>