BOLD AND BEAUTIFUL

JINX McDONALD
INTERIOR DESIGNS

Actualized by interior designer Barbara Schwenk of Jinx McDonald Interior Designs, the stunning vanity in this Port Royal home is topped with a backlit semiprecious agate stone upon which an oval vessel of cut glass rests. A plastered white wall intersects with a gold-and-brown papered one. Overhead, a playful brown light fixture breaks up the many right angles on display in the room. “We knew the gorgeous semiprecious agate vanity slab deserved to be the headliner in this bathroom,” states Schwenk. “From there, we brought in bold supporting design elements to elevate and create a memorable moment in the home.” (jinxmcdonald.com)

COASTAL COTTAGE GLAMOUR

FREESTYLE INTERIORS

Proudly exclaiming a beachy vibe, this powder room centers around a boxy, textured custom vanity. Created by Julie Roy, senior designer at Freestyle Interiors, the walls—hand-painted in wide, crisp white and soft blue stripes—further heighten the room’s coastal mood. A louvered entrance door continues the seaside motif. “Fanciful details started with custom legs on the vanity—all painted a whispery blue,” notes Roy. “A textured backsplash adds whimsy. We design small powder baths to bring the unexpected smile.” (freestyleinteriors.com)

ARTISANAL EXPERIENCE

LITTLE PALM DESIGN GROUP

Walls swathed in handcrafted, sustainable wallpaper created by skilled artisans forge a vibrant contrast to four vividly colored prints of synchronized swimmers by artist Marti Koehler. (The homeowner was once a synchronized swimmer.) Found in a high-rise at Kalea Bay, this personalized powder room was fashioned by Dawn Harmon, principal designer, and Kirsten Young, interior designer, at Little Palm Design Group. The coastal-style half bath remains close to the home’s organic genesis. “We consider the powder bath a jewel box—a special place to make a statement,” says Harmon. “In this Naples home, we created a unique space that is inspired and interesting, while incorporating the flavor of the home.” (littlepalmdesigngroup.com)
